Dept of Housing and Urban Development, Office of Policy Development and Research, 2005 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)62717230 Subject: Discrimination in housing -- United States -- Measurement. Excerpt: . . . Discrimination Against Persons with Disabilities: Testing Guidance for Practitioners 2. 6 Reasonable Accommodation Both the Fair Housing Act and Section 504 of the 1973 Rehabilitation Act require a housing provider to make reasonable accommodation to enable a person with a disability to use 25 and enjoy housing. The types of accommodation needed by people with disabilities are almost unlimited because each individual may need a different type of accommodation, or several types of accommodation, depending on his or her disability-related needs. Under the Act, reasonable accommodation must be made to rules, policies, practices, or services, when needed for an individual to fully utilize the housing. One reasonable accommodation need that occurs frequently both in private and assisted 26 housing is for an accessible parking space, located in close proximity to a unit that is under consideration for rental. The need for accommodation might involve a request for a designated...
