Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Education, Vol. 16: An Address Delivered Before the Linnaean Association of Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, April, 18th, 1853 The subject to come before us is, One of the phases of Education: and I trust that it will not appear immodest in me, to have brought any such question, for your consideration, into a presence like this, where I expected, of course, to see those, whose wisdom and experience in Education are so extensively known. As to the particular phase of the subject to be exhibited, I shall not now, be very explicit. My moon is yet below the horizon; you must be contented, if you please, with a kind of crepuscular light, for awhile, and at her rising, you will at once see for yourselves. Of course, you will not expect sun-light; only a mild and gentle radiance is possible to my humble orb. Yet I will try to have her shine from a clear sky, hoping to keep away all clouds, from before her modest disc, and shall expect you to prevent, if you can,...
